

Family Activity

Have family members secretly write down their favorite, or number one things. Have categories that make sense for your family. Some suggested categories are: number one place to sit, number one TV show, number one song, number one singer/band, number one meal. Hold the cards where no one can see them and then ask family members to see if they can guess the number ones from each person's card. After the guessing game, discuss how sometimes it was easy to guess what someone's number one thing was and sometimes it wasn't. Ask the members of your family to describe how each person shows that something is number one in his or her life. For example, how do you show that ____ is your number one TV show? Tell your family that sometimes we do a good job of showing what is number one in our lives and sometimes we don't. When something is truly important to us, we should show it. We should all work harder to make sure that others can tell that Jesus is the number one, most important thing in our lives.
