

Family Activity

Get a stack of note cards. Have each family member write "truth" on five cards and "lie" on one card. Put all the cards together and shuffle them. Then sit as a family where each person can reach the stack of cards in the middle. Each person turns over one card. If the card is a lie all will try to be the first to slap the lie card. The last person to slap has to take the lie card and any cards underneath it. The goal of the game is to end up with the fewest cards. After the game, discuss that none of the lies went by unnoticed. Also discuss that as each card was flipped over, everyone was tense and watching, because they knew it might be a lie. Tell your family that just like in the game, lies hardly ever go unnoticed. You will almost always get caught. Tell them that just like everyone was tense and watching the deck because a lie could come up at any time, people will become tense and watchful around you if you get a reputation for lying. Lies will always bring more trouble than they are worth. That is why we should always tell the truth.
